Tuscany produces five of Italy's DOCG wines: Brunello, Carmignano, Chianti and Chianti Classico, Vernaccia di San Gimignano (the only white) and Vino Nobile di Montepulciano. Tuscany also boasts some 38 DOC wines. An important development since the end of 1980s has been the rise of Supertuscan, a long-lived wine of high quality.

The best of them, Chianti Classico, comes from seven zones in many different guises. The backbone of the Chianti reds is the Sangiovese grape, although other grapes types are mixed in varyingly modest quantities to produce different styles of wine. Everybody knows Gallo Nero (Black Cock) the emblem shared by the Chianti Classico wines and exported all over the world.

WINE AND FOOD EXPERIENCE - 16/22 JULY 2007

16th July

Meet your tour escort and the participants in Piazza delle Carceri (Prato) and depart for a full day excursion to the Montalbano area, a land of vineyards and olive trees. En route you will visit the medicean Villa Ambra. Isolated in a dominant position, the Villa is considered one of the ripest fruits of Florentine humanism.

Continue to Carmignano to visit one of the best renowned winery farm of the area, strolling among terraces of olive-groves and vineyards. The production is particularly oriented towards high level quality DOCG (Carmignano DOCG), some valuable IGT, vinsanto DOC, extra-virgin olive oil, flavoured oil and a wide choice of typical hand-made food products.

The farm owners will guide you visiting the vineyard and oliveyard with description of different kind of grapes and olive plant; in the cellar you will be taught on the wine production method (from bottling operations to wine aging)

At the end of the tour, a light lunch and a wine tasting will be offered you: bruschette with extravirgin olive oil, cheese and ham, a choice of vegetables and 2 different Docg/Igt wines.
